in her house and cook the family meals on it.

GAS IS CLEANLY

It does not compel long waits to get the stove hot enough to cook anything. It is economical and will take the place of medicines to keep the housewife in good health and spirits.

AMUSEMENTS

SCENE FROM "THE AMERICAN GIRL" TO BE PRESENTED TONIGHT AT THE ORPHEUM BY THE ELLEFORDS.

The Elleford company presented "Pals" for the second time last night to another pleased house, and every member of the company seemed to make a hit. Tonight the bill is J. Q. Seamon's pretty American comedy, "The American Girl." The play has been presented by this company at the Orpheum, four years ago, and it was one of the best productions of the season. The story deals with an American girl who is clandestinely married to a young English artist. He meets her while on a sketching tour on an Alabama plantation. His cousin, the prodigal of the family, has met the girl and has fallen in love with her, and tries to stop the marriage. Failing in this, he plots to have revenge. The artist receives a message that his mother is dying, and writes his wife a note that he is called away, but the note is intercepted by the cousin, who tells the wife that her husband has deserted her and gone back to England. He makes proposals to her that she rejects with scorn, and she leaves for England to search for her husband. A year after the marriage a boy is born to the artist and his wife, and after she arrives in England she has a little daughter, and her struggles to keep the wolf from the door and look after her little ones make a beautiful play. Through the help of friends she is finally restored to her husband and all ends happily. The comedy is provided by an American actor, a little country girl that afterwards becomes a great singer, and other clever characters provide lots of fun. The popular Osborn children have two great parts as "Prince Roy" and "The Little Lady," in which they will introduce a new specialty. On account of the big hit of "Pals," there has been many requests for another performance, and it will be the Saturday matinee bill. Seats are now on sale for all of the week's performances.

"Checkers" Is a Great Comedy.

There was no dress rehearsal of "Checkers" last night, as Mr. Goulding thought it better to allow the members of the Pollard company a thorough rest and have the dress doings next Thursday morning before the opening. "Checkers" is one of the most successful American comedies ever written. The plot follows very closely that of the novel of the same name, and nearly everybody has read it. So there is not much to be said on these lines.

Checkers, played by Alfred Goulding, is the original hard-luck kid until he meets the one and only girl, played by Eva Moore. He meets her at Hot Springs, Arkansas, where he is down on his luck. Here he also falls in with a race-track tout, by Teddie McNamara, and is touched for the nimble ten-dollar bill.

Checkers falls in love with the girl and is confident of reciprocation, but her father won't stand for it. He tells Checkers, whose real name is Edward Campbell, that he must produce five thousand honestly-earned dollars, before he has a chance for the paternal consent.

Checkers thinks a whole lot, but can not do much until he hits Chicago and again runs into "Push" Miller, the race-track tout. Miller steers him on to an outsider in the betting and the hero takes his lucky California fifty-dollar gold piece and places it at a hundred to one on the outsider. This is at the track, and, of course, the girl and her father turn up there, too.

After Checkers has made his bet the tout gets hold of the girl's father and persuades him to bet twenty dollars on the same horse for a place. The outsider wins, and it is a great scene where Checkers stands, without daring to look at the track, and urges "Remorse," the horse he has bet on, to come in first.

In the last act there is a run on the bank owned by the girl's father. There is one old depositor who has about thirty thousand dollars in the bank, and should he withdraw, it would be all off with the bank entirely. So Checkers comes to the rescue. He waylays the old man, who is hurrying to the bank, and keeps him busy telling stories until the doors of the bank are closed for the day.

This makes the final hit with the girl's father and everything is lovely thereafter. The part of Checkers is well suited to Alfred Goulding. The smooth slang of the educated youngster who is up against it is very catchy, and Goulding does it well.

Teddie McNamara has a great scene in the last act. He is the tout and meets the girl's father, who supposes, because he bet on a horse to come in second and it came in first, that he lost his money. Teddie buys his ticket back for the original twenty dollars, which ticket is worth just four hundred dollars, and the old man believes that he has done a great stroke of business in forcing the tout to disgorge.

It is a great comedy and teems with humor and human interest all the way through. It is just exactly suited to the Pollard actors, and each of them has a part to which he or she can do full justice.

There will be a matinee and evening performance of "The Charity Ball" today, and "Checkers" will hold the boards tomorrow night. Friday will be dark at the Opera House, and there will be a matinee and another evening performance of "Checkers" on Saturday.
